

TESTIMONY OF CANADA'S INACTION

CANADA'S ROLE AND REPUTATION IN RECENT INTERNATIONAL CLIMATE CHANGE NEGOTIATIONS

This "cheat sheet" includes comments from climate negotiators, elected officials, scientists and UN spokespeople, highlighting the lacklustre performance Canada has had in international climate change negotiations in recent years. The Canadian government must do its fair share in order to allow for a fair, ambitious and binding international agreement to be reached.

Excerpts / Quotations

"Many countries, developed and developing countries, have come out with ambitious targets."

"Canada is going to soon chair the G8 and therefore it is only natural that Canada should come out with ambitious midterm targets as soon as possible," – United Nations Secretary General, Ban Ki Moon

- Globe and Mail, 27/11/09

"It is important that the Commonwealth works to reduce global warming, which will devastate many of its members.....Countries that fail to help should be suspended from membership, as are those that breach human rights. A process should now begin to consider suspending Canada."

- Former British international development secretary Clare Short, statement, 27/11/09

"It is important that the Commonwealth works to reduce global warming, which will devastate many of its members. Countries that fail to help should be suspended from membership, as are those that breach human rights. A process should now begin to consider suspending Canada."

- Saleemul Huq, Senior Fellow on Climate Change and a lead author of the IPCC fourth assessment report, statement, 27/11/09

"I've got to say some hard truths ... Canada has been earning a very bad name for itself,"

"Canada is not a struggling Third World country. Canada is a very rich, sophisticated country." "It doesn't have to depend on the tar sands." – George Monbiot

- CTV, 25/11/09

"Canada is by far the biggest defaulter on its Kyoto obligations on a tonnage basis. And as a result of that there is a lack of trust," – Tim Flannery

- CBC, 15/11/09

"It's disappointing to see Canada largely unengaged in what former World Bank chief economist Lord Stern has called the most important global meeting of this century..."

"It is not too late for Canada to step up. The most important contribution now would be for Canada to go to Copenhagen and negotiate in good faith to secure a fair, ambitious, and binding agreement."

- Tim Flannery, Author of The Weather Makers

- Press Release DSF, 14/10/09

"This country risks becoming an international pariah with an obsolete economy."

- The Ottawa Citizen Editorial, 26/09/09

"In the last couple of years, I'm afraid, Canada has not been seen as sitting at the table," Rajendra Pachauri, head of the UN's Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change

"I think Canada should be doing much more."

- Vancouver Sun, 21/09/09

"[...] proposals by some others, including Canada and the US, do not appear to be equal to the required effort level and would make it impractical for collective efforts by developed countries to reach the 25-40% range. It is therefore necessary for Canada and the US to take on commitments which are at least on a par with the EU's compared with 1990 levels, particularly as GDP loss (the cost in percentage) resulting from this level of effort would be lower in the US or Canada than in Europe."

- French Government Memorandum, 3/06/09

"My message to Canada, on behalf of (the Caribbean), is that the industrialized countries that have been the dominant emitters of carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases must comply with the Kyoto protocols, and also the United Nations framework on climate change, and the conference in Bali," Jamaican Deputy Prime Minister Kenneth Baugh.

- The Guardian, 25/03/09

"Et pour tout dire, après des déclarations du président Obama, nous aimerions bien que ce soit toute l'Amérique du Nord qui comprenne que l'avenir de la planète dépend de ce que ferons ou pas d'ici la fin de l'année." - French President Nicolas Sarkozy

- La Presse, 5/02/09

(..., following the declarations of President Obama, we would like if all of North America could understand that the future of the planet depends on what we do or not here at the end of the year.)

"Japan, Russia, Australia and Canada have avoided putting their numbers on the table for too long. They now need to come forward with credible and ambitious mid-term targets within the 25% to 40% range for 2020," Marthinus Van Schalkwyk, South African Minister of Environmental Affairs and Tourism

- Media statement, 2/12/08

"[Harper's] inner oilman has won out when it comes to the environment."

- The Economist, 9/10/08

"At one point during the conference, de Boer portrayed Canada as a climate hypocrite. And at another, Rajendra Pachauri, head of the UN's climate science panel that shared this year's Nobel Peace Prize with Gore, castigated the Harper government, saying, "They do not want to do anything on climate change."

- The Toronto Star, 16/12/07

"This particular government has been a government of skeptics. They do not want to do anything on climate change," Rajendra Pachauri - head of the Nobel Prize-winning Intergovernmental Panel on Climate Change.

- Associated Free Press, 6/12/07

"If Canada steps back from its commitments under Kyoto now ... it would be dealing a damaging blow to international law and to its credibility in future negotiations," Stavros Dimas, European Commissioner for the Environment.

-Ottawa Sun, 1/01/07

"I am extremely frustrated by the double standards of industrialized nations. Canada criticizes other countries about their human rights policies or about the death penalty while they are playing with the lives of island people and the Inuit," - Enele Sopoaga, Ambassador and Permanent Representative of Tuvalu to the United Nations and vice-chair of the Alliance of Small Island States.

- Inter Press Service, 9/12/06

Fossil of the Day/ Year Awards

Canada has also been the recipient of two Colossal Fossil Awards, awarded at United Nations Framework Convention on Climate Change meetings by the Climate Action Network International, a global coalition of more than 450 organizations. The Colossal Fossil Award is awarded to the country that has been the least constructive in the negotiations over the course of the conference. Canada tied with the United States for this award in Bali in 2007, and was the sole recipient of this award in Poznan in 2008. The awards are proposed and voted on by the Climate Action Network International.
