

September 24, 2008

Young people across Canada know that the window of opportunity to act on climate change is closing. The next government will either build a bright new economic future or continue Canada's decades of inaction on climate change and lock us into a declining fossil economy.

Thousands of youth are already mobilizing on our campuses and in our communities. We are collecting thousands of signatures, rallying for green jobs and our "polar bear army" is appearing at campaign stops across the country. This October, Students for Sustainability will be touring campuses nation-wide to promote sustainable solutions, and environmental voting.

As part of a larger community of environment, faith and labour groups, the organizations gathered here these last two days have been making plans to communicate to Canadians the importance of voting for climate change this election.

In this election, for our future, you must vote for the climate.